2 Building Safety Update

The Chairman introduced Tim Galloway, Deputy Director of Health and Safety Executive (HSE), who gave a presentation which outlined the role of HSE in building safety.

Members made the following comments:

- Recruiting and retaining staff for building control had been a challenge for local authorities.
- It was raised that at present councils had no information about whether building control would have a role in delivering the regulation of 12,000+ existing high rise residential buildings which was a concern for councils' that would need to consider this in the budgeting process and the capacity of the workforce.
- It was queried when HSE were consulted on planning applications and within what period of time they are expected to respond by.

In response, Tim Galloway made the following comments:

- HSE had undertaken modelling on expected demand. There were plans to create a pool of resource employed by LABC to be distributed to councils based on need.

- A decision on the role of building control's regulation of existing high rise residential buildings would be addressed urgently by HSE.
- HSE was a statutory consultee in planning applications for high buildings that fit the criteria and had aimed to respond to applications within 21 days of being consulted.

In response to queries, it was clarified by Charles Loft, Senior Adviser, that the burden of making a building safer falls on councils as landlords and would be funded from Housing Revenue Accounts (HRA). Without the knowledge of councils' role in building control and what resource demand would be, a discussion on potential new burdens had not taken place.

The Chairman thanked Tim Galloway for his attendance.

Members noted the report and presentation.

4 2022/23 Priorities and Work Programme and anticipated upcoming issues for housing and planning

The Chairman invited Members to comment on the Priorities and Work Programme for 2022/23, with consideration for the report which set out the anticipated upcoming key issues for housing and planning.

Members made the following comments:

- Housing supply was an issue both for in rural and urban areas.
- Utility infrastructure was a growing consideration in housing and planning. In particular, the lack of capacity in the national grid was raised as a barrier to prevent development.

- Retrofitting of homes was raised as a priority, with concerns raised at the long-term economic impacts. As well as lobbying government for funding, consideration should be given to what councils can do, with a Sussex based not-for-private-profit cooperative of retrofit experts as an example.
- It was suggested that the ask that air quality should be to a “national standard” should be changed to instead be to “public health guidelines”.
- As well as consideration for the systemic issues that prevent people from being housed, it was suggested that there be a regional approach as different regions face different challenges.

Following discussions, it was proposed that there should be a reframing of key issues within the Boards’ remit when lobbying central government. Messaging should start with the aim of addressing economic issues and then determining issues or opportunities for growth in housing, environment and transport that can have an economic impact.

Members were reminded to share any relevant information relating to the impact social housing rent cap would have on councils.

Action:

The 2022/23 Priorities and Work Programme to be amended in line with the agreed Board positions and circulated to Board Lead Members for final agreement.
